THE UNIVERSITY OF OKLAHOMA IS AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY INSTITUTION. WWW.OU.EDU/EOO
Sanora Babb was born April 21, 1907, and lived in the Oklahoma town of Red Rock, spending much of her time on the Otoe Tribe’s reservation. Chief Black Hawk wanted to buy her, but her father declined. The chief then gave her a pinto pony and the name “Little Cheyenne Who Rides Like the Wind.” She spoke of this all her life, and her early experience with the Tribe influenced her writing and affinity with the natural world.

Headed by a nomadic father with a penchant for gambling, the family moved often—Ponca City, Blackwell, Waynoka—and then, in 1913, settled on a broomcorn farm on the arid, wind-swept high plains of Baca County, Colorado, living in a dugout homesteaded by her grandfather. After repeated crop failures they moved to the Oklahoma Panhandle, where Babb graduated from Forgan High School as valedictorian. After graduating from Garden City Junior College, she taught a year in a one-room school and then worked at the Garden City Herald, where she obtained her Associated Press credentials. At the same time, she was successfully publishing poetry in the many literary magazines that existed at the time. For seventy years Sanora Babb wrote poetry. Many of these poems are featured in a new collection, Told in the Seed and Selected Poems (Muse Ink Press, 2021).

In 1929, Babb moved to Los Angeles, California, to work as a journalist. While working as a scriptwriter for KFWB in Los Angeles, many of her short stories and poems appeared in the Prairie Schooner, The Anvil, New Masses, The Clipper, California Quarterly, Southwest Review, Kansas Magazine, Antioch Review, and elsewhere, along with the work of other young writers such as Ralph Ellison, William Saroyan, Nelson Algren, Meridel Le Sueur, Tillie Olsen, Carlos Bulosan, and Ray Bradbury as well as established writers such as Dorothy Parker, Genevieve Taggard, Nathanael West, and Katherine Anne Porter. Her early short stories and reportage are in the new collection, The Dark Earth and Selected Prose from the Great Depression (Muse Ink Press, 2021). Later short stories (now published in Cry of The Tinamou, 2021) appeared in these same journals and more mainstream magazines such as Seventeen and Saturday Evening Post.

After visiting the Soviet Union in 1936 and spending a year in London, Babb returned to Los Angeles, and volunteered to help Tom Collins set up the Farm Service Agency tent camps for the dispossessed in California’s agricultural valleys. This work furnished material for her first novel, Whose Names Are Unknown, that Random House contracted. However, when The Grapes of Wrath appeared to great acclaim, the publisher reneged, contending that readers would not welcome two novels on Dust Bowl refugees.

Babb was editor of The Clipper and The California Quarterly, but once her association with the literary left threatened to jeopardize the career of her husband, Oscar-winning cinematographer
James Wong Howe, she moved to Mexico City. Her first published novel, the autobiographical The Lost Traveler (1958, 2013) reflects her turbulent teen years. Her earlier childhood on the plains is lyrically told in the memoir, An Owl on Every Post (1970, 2021). When Owl was originally published, her friend Ralph Ellison wrote that the work was a “thought-provoking description of the mystery, wonder and poetry of growing up in a pioneering environment. A vivid restoration of an important phase of American history.”

The Chance: The True Story of One Girl’s Journey to Freedom
Lisa Cheng and Bruce M. Baker
Soonershoot Press

When you’re twelve, you think you can live forever. Muoi Quan knew that was a lie. She had faced death before, and her quest for freedom would have her face it again and again. Muoi was only nine as she watched in horror as the city of Saigon fell to the Communists. A year later, the military invaded her home and destroyed her family’s business. At age eleven, an escape attempt to China with her cousin ended in Hanoi, where they avoided death by firing squad. In 1979, she traveled to see her older brother as he left Vietnam via a dangerous sea crossing. She stood at the riverside when a twist of fate pushed her forward and onto a boat, giving her a chance. Lisa Cheng (Muoi Quan) and Bruce Baker provide an authentic account of one person’s journey to freedom. Cheng is the mother of four children, and resides in Oklahoma City with her husband Paul. Baker is a former teacher of English literature and writing. He and his wife, Deborah, live in Oklahoma City.

A Life on Fire: Oklahoma’s Kate Bernard
Connie Cronley
University of Oklahoma Press

Cronley tells the story of Catherine Ann (Kate) Bernard, a fiery political reformer and the first woman elected to state office in Oklahoma, almost fifteen years before women won the right to vote in the United States. The author examines Bernard’s childhood and her early career as a teacher and later as a champion of Progressive reform advocating for such causes as compulsory education, prison reform, mental health, and child labor laws. Cronley also includes Bernard’s involvement in the so-called Indian Question, where she defended Native orphans against a conspiracy of graft that reached from Oklahoma to Washington, D.C. This activity led to a harsh retaliation against her and the office she held. Cronley is the author of three books of essays: Sometimes a Wheel Falls Off, Light and Variable, and Poke a Stick at It. She is the co-author of Mr. Ambassador: Warrior for Peace. Cronley lives in Tulsa.

Unknown No More: Recovering Sanora Babb
Edited by Joanne Dearcopp and Christine Hill Smith
University of Oklahoma Press

Editors Dearcopp and Smith have assembled a group of distinguished scholars who, for the first time in book-length form, examine the life and work of author Sanora Babb, who is perhaps best known for her novel Whose Names are Unknown. These essays address Babb’s position within the literature of the Great Plains and American West, her leftist political odyssey as a card-carrying Communist who ultimately broke with the Party, and her ecofeminist leanings as reflected in the environmental themes she explored in her fiction and non-fiction. Babb’s work revealed gender-based, environmental, and working-class injustices from the Depression era to the late twentieth century. Dearcopp, Sanora Babb’s literary executor and agent, is an author, writing coach, and publisher. She resides in Old Greenwich, Connecticut. Smith serves as professor of humanities and communications at Colorado Mountain College in Glenwood Springs, Colorado.

Not a Nation of Immigrants: Settler Colonialism, White Supremacy, and a History of Erasure and Exclusion
Roxanne Dunbar-Ortiz
Beacon Press

In this fascinating account of American history, Dunbar-Ortiz takes on the myth that the United States is a nation of immigrants. The author puts forth the argument that the idea we live in a land of opportunity, founded and built by immigrants, became a convenient response by the ruling class and its brain trust to the 1960s demand for decolonization, justice, reparations, and social equality. She argues this benign narrative is grossly inaccurate. The author contends this dishonest and pernicious ideology serves to mask and diminish America’s history of settler colonialism, genocide, white supremacy, and slavery. Moreover, she contends it is time to stop perpetuating simplistic and ahistorical fantasies and embrace the true, complex, and often sobering history of the United States. Born and raised in central Oklahoma, Dunbar-Ortiz is the author of many books, including An Indigenous Peoples’ History of the United States, winner of the 2015 American Book Award. She lives in San Francisco, California.

This Land is Herland: Gendered Activism in Oklahoma from the 1870s to the 2010s
Edited by Sarah Eppler Janda and Patricia Loughlin
University of Oklahoma Press

Since well before the ratification of the Nineteenth Amendment in 1920 that secured their right to vote, women in Oklahoma sought to change and uplift their communities through political activism. This compilation of essays showcases thirteen female activists and explores their varied experiences from the territorial period to the present. Edited by Janda and Loughlin, the collection explores how race, ethnicity, social class, gender, and political power shaped these women’s efforts to improve their local, state, and national communities. Janda is a professor of history at Cameron University in Lawton. Her book Prairie Power: Student Activism, Counterculture, and Backlash in Oklahoma 1962–1972, was a 2019 Oklahoma Book Award finalist for non-fiction. Loughlin serves as professor of history at the University of Central Oklahoma in Edmond. She is a two-time Oklahoma Book Award medalist, winning for Hidden Treasures of the American West: Muriel H. Wright, Angie Debo, and Alice Marriott in 2006 and the children’s book Angie Debo: Daughter of the Prairie in 2018.

The Most Wonderful Wonder: True and Tragic Tales from the Back Roads of American History
Holly Samson Hall
Messenger Moth Press

Hall’s book showcases her passion for the obscure. She has woven together a heady mix of morbid curiosities, macabre fascinations, and Gothic Americana extracted from the murky waters of time. The reader is afforded the opportunity to explore bizarre spectacles of calamity and disaster, grisly murders, dreadful diseases, and devastating storms. Read true and tragic tales of sideshow mummies and shoes made from human skin. Here you will find stories about exceptional animals, the Ozark witch who could see the future, human wolves on the Oklahoma prairie, a man buried alive fifty feet below the ground, medicine show miracles, and deadly baby bottles. Hall is a story keeper and lifelong student of history, who haunts libraries, local history museums, and country cemeteries. She lives in Guthrie, Oklahoma, with her husband and three children.

At War with Corruption: A Biography of Bill Price, U.S. Attorney for the Western District of Oklahoma
Michael J. Hightower
2 Cities Press

Hightower explores the life and career of Bill Price, U.S. Attorney and Republican candidate for high office, who spearheaded prosecutions in the most pervasive public corruption spectacle in Oklahoma and American history: the County Commissioner scandal. The author argues Price's career in law and politics serves as a portal into corruption in Oklahoma. Hightower's book includes such scandals as land swindles; theft of Native American property and the Osage murders; The 1964–65 Oklahoma Supreme Court; Oklahoma State Treasurer Leo Winters; Governor David Hall's extortion trial; drug syndicates; and the Penn Square Bank insiders. Moreover, Price shatters the myth that Oklahomans are tolerant of, and susceptible to, corruption. Hightower's book 1889: The Boomer Movement, the Land Run, and Early Oklahoma City was a 2018 Oklahoma Book Award non-fiction finalist. He splits his time between Oklahoma City, and Charlottesville, Virginia.

Believing: Our Thirty-Year Journey to End Gender Violence
Anita Hill
Penguin Random House

Hill draws on her years as a teacher, legal scholar and advocate, and on the experiences of thousands of individuals who have told her their stories, to trace the pipeline of harassment that follows individuals from place to place. Along with the immeasurable harm it causes, Hill exposes gender-based violence as a public crisis and a national embarrassment that has cast a dark shadow over every branch of our government, civilian and military. Moreover, she demonstrates the damage it does to our collective physical and mental health, and to our safety, educational achievements, economic advancements, political participation, and confidence in our government and private institutions. Hill serves as University Professor of Social Policy, Law, and Women’s and Gender Studies at Brandeis University in Waltham, Massachusetts.

The 1921 Tulsa Race Massacre: A Photographic History
Karlos K. Hill
University of Oklahoma Press

This richly illustrated volume, featuring more than 175 photographs, along with oral testimonies, shines a new spotlight on the 1921 Tulsa Race Massacre from the vantage point of its victims and survivors. Hill presents a range of photographs (some are published here for the first time) taken before, during, and after the massacre, mostly by white photographers. Comparing these photographs to those taken elsewhere in the United States of lynchings, the author makes a powerful case for terming the 1921 outbreak not a riot, but a massacre. Despite all the violence and destruction, Black Tulsans rebuilt the Greenwood district brick by brick. This photographic history offers a perspective largely missing from other accounts. Hill is the author of Beyond the Rope: The Impact of Lynching on Black Culture and Memory and The Murder of Emmett Till: A Graphic History. He lives in Norman, Oklahoma.

Tony Hillerman: A Life
James McGrath Morris
University of Oklahoma Press

Morris offers a balanced portrait of Hillerman's personal and professional life and provides a timely appreciation of his work. Morris captures the author's early years in Depression-era Oklahoma; his near-death experience in World War II; his sixty-year marriage to Marie; his family life, including six children, five of them adopted; his work in the trenches of journalism; his affliction with PTSD and its connection to his enchantment with Navajo spirituality; and his ascension as one of America’s best-known writers of mysteries. Moreover, the author uncovers the almost accidental invention of Hillerman’s iconic detective Joe Leaphorn and the circumstances that led to the addition of Jim Chee as his partner. Morris is an award-winning and New York Times best-selling author. His books include The Ambulance Drivers: Hemingway, Dos Passos, and a Friendship Made and Lost in War and Pulitzer: A Life in Politics, Print, and Power. He lives in Santa Fe, New Mexico.

Design/Illustration/Photography

Tall Grass Big Dreams
designed by Carl Brune and photography by Harvey Payne
Full Circle Press

The refinement of Carl Brune’s design begins with the cover, Harvey Payne’s wonderful photograph overlaid with the title, set in elegant Bodebeck type, just straddling the horizon. “Tall Grass” is colored to harmonize with the cloud strewn sky, “Big Dreams” set in white over golden prairie grass. All through the book, details seem assiduous: the pastedown and flyleaf are sky blue, matching the cover photograph’s sky as glimpsed between the clouds; inside the book, readable type is set in balanced line lengths and augmented by numerous historical photographs and maps. Overshadowing all else is a generous selection of Harvey Payne’s renowned, richly colored photographs of the tallgrass prairies of Oklahoma, lending crucial context to author Tom Lindley’s historical narrative. Brune lives in Tulsa and is a three-time Oklahoma Book Award winner in this category. Award-winning nature photographer Payne received the Oklahoma Book Award in 1997 for Big Bluestem: A Journey into the Tall Grass.

Funny Fani’
designed by Corey Fetters and illustrated by Josh (Lokosh) Hinson
White Dog Press

Funny Fani’ is a thoughtfully-designed children’s book with fun, appealing typefaces, and bold coloring. Creative choices are shared throughout by the author, illustrator, and book designer. Just one example cited by judges is the glossary with its facts about animals and their relationship to Chickasaw traditions. Hinson, the illustrator, draws dozens of animals with a sweet balance between whimsy and realism. The title protagonist stands out as an amiable cartoon squirrel with oversized features—big black eyes and a wide grin revealing a solitary pair of incisors. Each page is full of activity and multiple characters, ensuring the reader a fun adventure as they learn about Chickasaw words and culture. Fetters is graphic design manager for the Chickasaw Nation in Ada, Oklahoma, and is a two-time Oklahoma Book Award winner. Hinson creates art within the Chickasaw Nation. This is his second time as a finalist.

The Oklahoma State Fair—A History
designed by Skip McKinstry
Oklahoma Hall of Fame Publishing

The cover consists of fifteen photographs cropped into narrow, vertical stripes set above a teal background and wrapping around the book. The colorful bands entice the reader into the book to see more. The book delivers on the cover’s promise with a generous collection of historical and contemporary photographs. Chapters are set apart by heading pages that use full-page photographs and large type. Text spreads use multiple columns, narrow measures, and ragged margins assuring readability. The book recounts in detail the history of the State Fair of Oklahoma and underscores the fairground’s importance to the economic progress of Oklahoma City and the state. The design does a great job of reflecting the essence of celebration that is the State Fair. Designer Skip McKinstry won the 2012 design award for the book Ilimpa’chi’ (Let’s Eat!): A Chickasaw Cookbook.

The 1921 Tulsa Race Massacre: A Photographic History
designed by Barry Roseman and Anthony Roberts
University of Oklahoma Press

This book immediately grabs the reader’s attention, from the dust cover’s carefully composed title over a sepia-toned photograph of post-massacre destruction, to the red book board matching the red “Massacre” on the cover. On the title page inside, the white and red text on black further underscores the solemn nature of the subject. The unique table of contents consists of square photographs in rows with chapter titles and page numbers underneath, red chapter numbers above, all surrounded by generous white space. The introduction, which contains the most text in the book, lays the type out with an off-center single column comprising roughly two-thirds of the page, leaving a large gutter of white for dramatic effect. Design choices throughout lend a sense of confident dignity to the book. Roseman is a visiting professor of Visual Communication at the University of Oklahoma. OU Press’s Anthony Roberts is a two-time Oklahoma Book Award medalist in this category.

Recovering Ancient Spiro: Native American Art, Ritual, and Cosmic Renewal
designed by Eric Singleton and Julie Allred
National Cowboy & Western Heritage Museum

The arresting outer cover presents a cropped, off-center closeup of a flint clay effigy depicting a brooking man. Underneath the dust jacket, a textured cover board has been lightly embossed with a gold line drawing and title. Inside the book, black pages emphasize chapter titles set in warm, golden brown all-caps type. The opening page of each chapter has a drop cap colored with the same golden brown and matching the height of the chapter title. All pages have text set in a large line length or measure close to the binding leaving a lavish amount of white space along the outer edge of pages. Even with the meticulous handling of text, the highlight of the book is the numerous, handsomely photographed Spiro artifacts. In addition, two-page spreads are scattered through the book featuring artworks by “descendants of the Mississippian people.” These vividly colored sections offer an unexpected and refreshing contrast to the antiquities while providing an important continuity of Native American art of the past and present. Singleton was a contributor to the 2010 Non-fiction Oklahoma Book Award winning anthology Thomas Gilcrease. He is curator of ethnology at the National Cowboy and Western Heritage Museum. Allred is a book designer in Oxford, North Carolina.

Fiction

Splitsville  William Bernhardt  Babylon Books

Kenzi Rivera is a talented attorney, who has constantly fought male chauvinism in her father’s law firm. When she decides to help a desperate scientist find her daughter, Kenzi soon realizes her client is involved in Hexitel, a cult-like group that is involved in disturbing practices involving large sums of money, servitude, and sex. She also discovers her client’s lab has experienced death threats and cutthroat competition. After the lab is destroyed by fire, and her client has been charged with murder, Kenzi recognizes more than a custody case is at stake. Bernhardt has authored more than fifty books. He has been honored for his writing having received the Southern Writers Guild’s Gold Medal Award, the Roydon B. Davis Distinguished Author Award, and the H. Louise Cobb Distinguished Author Award. The Oklahoma Center for the Book honored him in 2019 with the Arrell Gibson Lifetime Achievement Award. He and his wife, Lara, reside in Choctaw, Oklahoma.

Blood on the Mother Road  Mary Coley  Moonglow Books

Small-town journalist Claire Northcutt travels old Route 66 to Persimmon, Oklahoma, where she intends to research the Mother Road. Soon she senses a cover-up in the small town, as she perceives Persimmon is plagued with either toxic pollution, meth production, or both. Holt Braden, an undercover DEA agent and Claire’s boyfriend, also is in town. He has been assigned to protect Renee Trammel, who is in the Witness Protection Program awaiting to testify against a brutal Texas drug ring. Both Claire and Renee’s lives intersect when they provoke the wrath of criminals, intent on evil pursuits. Can the two women, with Holt’s assistance, prevent a looming disaster in this small community? This is Coley’s eighth mystery-suspense novel. She received the Tony Hillerman Award at the New Mexico/Arizona Book Awards. She has twice been named an Oklahoma Book Award fiction finalist. She splits her time writing in Santa Fe, New Mexico, and Tulsa.

Stargazer  Anne Hillerman  HarperCollins

Officer Bernadette Manuelito is called to help find Maya, an old college friend. The two were inseparable, but Maya’s addiction drove them apart. Now, Maya’s brother has asked Bernie to find out what happened to her. Bernie’s investigation reveals Maya confessed to murdering her estranged husband, a prominent astronomer. Realizing that certain case facts do not align, she delves further and uncovers new information about the stargazer’s work. New clues take her to a remote area on Navajo Nation land and a calculating killer. Bernie’s search also creates a rift between her and husband, Jim Chee, who is also her acting boss. Can Bernie and Jim’s mentor, Joe Leaphorn, provide the guidance both need? This is Hillerman’s sixth novel and the twenty-fourth in the Leaphorn, Chee and Manuelito series, begun by her father Tony Hillerman. The Oklahoma native now lives in Santa Fe, New Mexico.

_Dance with Death_  Will Thomas  Minotaur Books

The future Nicholas II of Russia is traveling to England with his mistress, ballerina Mathilde Kschessinska. Rumored to be the target of professional assassin La Sylphide, and the subject of conspiracies against his life by members of his own family, Nicholas is protected by his private security detail and the professional forces of both England and Russia. British sleuths Cyrus Barker and Thomas Llewelyn are brought in to hunt down an anarchist who mistook England’s Prince George for Nicholas in a failed assassination attempt. The investigation takes several paths including a confrontation with Llewelyn’s old nemesis, Sofia Ilyanova. After Barker and Llewelyn survive separate attempts on their lives, the two must solve the case of their life before the crime of the century is committed. Thomas won the Oklahoma Book Award in fiction for _Some Danger Involved_ (2005) and _Fatal Enquiry_ (2015). He lives in Tulsa, Oklahoma.

_Hell on the Border: The Bass Reeves Trilogy_  Sidney Thompson  University of Nebraska Press

Bass Reeves is renowned for his law enforcement work in Indian Territory. _Hell on the Border_ tells the story of the Deputy United States Marshall at the height of his historic career. Famous for being a crack shot as well as for his non-violent tendencies, Reeves uses his African American heritage to his strategic advantage. Along with a tramp or cowboy disguise, Reeves appears so nonthreatening that he often positions himself close enough to the outlaws he is pursuing to arrest them without bloodshed. However, after a series of heroic feats including the capture and killing of infamous outlaws—most notably Jim Webb—Reeves finds himself in a Fort Smith jail, charged with murder. This second book in the Bass Reeves Trilogy investigates what really happened when Reeves made the greatest mistake of his life on the heels of his greatest achievements. Thompson teaches creative writing and African American literature at Texas Christian University.

_A Secret Lies in New Orleans_  Ron Wallace  Dorrance Publishing Company

When ninety-six-year-old retired United States Marshal and co-founder of Cowboys and Indians Detective Agency, William Matthew Wallace, receives a painting signed by his long-dead father, an eight-decades old family mystery unravels, and his son and godson are sent to New Orleans to investigate the circumstances for him. From pre-statehood Oklahoma into the turn of the twenty-first century, the family’s secrets are brought to light as a modern crime evolves from the past. Wallace is the author of ten books of poetry, five of which were named as finalists in the Oklahoma Book Awards. _Renegade and Other Poems_ won the Oklahoma Book Award for Children/Young Adult

_Living Ghosts & Mischievous Monsters: Chilling American Indian Stories_
_Dan SaSuWeh Jones_  Scholastic Press

Jones has put together thirty-two short stories, from tales passed down for generations to accounts that could have happened yesterday. These chilling stories are collected from the thriving tradition of ghost stories in American Indian cultures across North America. Prepare for stories of witches and walking dolls, hungry skeletons, La Llorona and Deer Women, as well as other supernatural beings ready to thrill and scare you to the bone. Former chair of the Ponca Tribe of Indians of Oklahoma, Jones is an artist, producer, writer, and filmmaker who has produced work for Sesame Street, NBC, TBS, and other national and international networks. His poetry book entitled _Blood of Our Earth_ was published in 2005. He lives in Kaw City, Oklahoma.

_Planting Peace: The Story of Wangari Maathai_
_Gwendolyn Hooks_  Interlink Publishing Group

Hooks provides a fascinating account of the life of Wangari Maathai, the first African woman to win the Nobel Peace Prize. The story follows Maathai, who grew up in Kenya surrounded by large, leafy trees and fresh, clean streams. However, by the time she became an adult, the landscape had changed dramatically, and people were struggling to grow enough food to eat. Determined to make a change, she encouraged local women to grow trees, and soon the land came back to life as communities came together to help each other. Maathai later founded the Green Belt Movement and inspired people around the world to plant millions of trees. She also fought for women’s rights and spoke out against government corruption. Hooks won the NAACP Image Award for Outstanding Literary Work for Children for _Tiny Stitches: The Life of Medical Pioneer Vivien Thomas_. The book was also a children/young adult Oklahoma Book Award finalist in 2017. Hooks resides in Oklahoma City.

_The Calliope Group LLC_

Opal Brown is an elementary school student living in Tulsa’s Greenwood District in 1921. Opal describes life in Greenwood, a thriving African American community. The community has hotels, newspapers, churches, theaters, physicians, and attorneys. As Opal’s family, and the rest of the Greenwood community, prepare for the Memorial Day picnic, Opal sees Dick Rowland running like he was being chased. Opal’s dad explained people were talking about how something had happened between Dick and a white girl who ran the elevator at the Drexel Building. As Opal enjoyed the picnic, she and others did not realize her “oasis” would soon be destroyed. Hylton teaches reading, writing stories, and poems to high school students in Oklahoma City. Enid-born poetry in 2018. He serves as an adjunct professor of English at Southeastern Oklahoma State University in Durant, Oklahoma, where he resides.
Lansana has written poetry and children’s books and lives in Tulsa. His poetry book The Walmart Republic was an Oklahoma Book Award finalist in 2015.

Run, Little Chaski! An Inka Trail Adventure  Mariana Llanos  Barefoot Books

Little Chaski must be strong, swift, sharp, and most of all, he must not be late! It is his first day delivering royal messages, and he wants to be a good messenger. His first mission is to deliver a message from the queen to the king before sundown. Will Little Chaski accomplish his assignment before the sun goes down? In this delightful story, the reader will discover the messenger system used by the Inka. The book includes notes on the Inka Trail, the Inka Empire, Quechua language and more. Llanos is a Peruvian-born writer of children’s literature. In 2017 she was selected as the Best Latino Artist by the Hispanic Arts Council of Oklahoma. That same year, she also was awarded the Global Citizen Award in Arts by the World Experiences Foundation for her contribution to multicultural literature, and the Human Rights Award given by the United Nations Association of Oklahoma City, which recognizes contributions to the principles of human rights. Her books include Luca's Bridge and Eunice and Kate. Llanos lives in Oklahoma City.

The Little Blue Bridge  Brenda Maier  Scholastic Press

Ruby’s mind is always full of ideas. When she spies some blueberries across the creek, she invites her brothers to pick some. Unfortunately, the bridge is blocked by scary Santiago, who won’t let them cross. But resourceful Ruby refuses to be bullied and creates her own way to cross the creek! Starring the plucky heroine from the acclaimed The Little Red Fort, this fresh take on The Three Billy Goats Gruff pays tribute to creative problem solving and building bridges of friendship. A teacher and gifted education specialist, Maier is the author of Peeping Beauty and The Little Red Fort, which was a 2019 Oklahoma Book Award finalist for children/young adult. She lives near Tulsa.

Night of the Amber Moon  Helen Dunlap Newton  Yorkshire Publishing

Izzy just wants to be a normal eleven-year-old kid with friends, less homework, and a dad that doesn’t turn mean when he drinks. Having a birthday party would help but how does she convince her parents when there is never enough money? None of it matters when her family’s house burns to the ground and her father doesn’t escape the flames. Even worse is the guilt she feels, thinking the fire is her fault. Afraid to tell anyone about the cause of the fire, Izzy obsesses about the old brick theater next to the family’s store and the strange noises from deep inside the building. Will an elusive cat, the creepy theater, and a strange old lady guide her to the forgiveness she so desperately needs? Dunlap-Newton is a veteran middle grade language arts teacher. One of her hobbies is caring for her backyard flock of chickens with her husband in Tulsa.

Seekers of the Wild Realm: Legend of the Realm  Alexandra Ott  Simon & Schuster

After finally realizing her dream of becoming a Seeker, Bryn is ready for her first official challenge, and she can’t wait to face it with her good friend, and fellow new Seeker, Ari by her side. When an ancient threat to the Realm emerges, a plague that threatens to destroy everything that she and the rest of the Council have sworn to protect, Bryn swears she will find a cure. But when Bryn tries to voice her ideas on how to best handle things, the other Seekers seem to turn against her, including Ari. As the plague jeopardizes the Realm, Bryn realizes she must put the fate of the Realm in her own hands, taking huge risks in the process. Can Bryn figure out how to rescue herself, her friends, and the entire Realm from an unimaginable fate? Ott was named an Oklahoma Book Award finalist in 2018 for Rules for Thieves and in 2020 for Seekers of the Wild Realm. She lives in Tulsa.

Dark and Shallow Lies
Ginny Myers Sain
Penguin Random House

La Cachette, Louisiana, is the worst place to be if you have something to hide. This tiny town, where seventeen-year-old Grey spends her summers, is the place where Elora Pellerin, Grey’s best friend, disappeared six months earlier. Grey can’t believe that Elora vanished into thin air any more than she can believe that nobody in a town full of psychics knows what happened. As Grey digs into the night Elora went missing, she begins to realize that everybody in town is hiding something. When a mysterious stranger emerges from the bayou, a stormy-eyed boy with links to Elora and the town’s bloody history, Grey doesn’t know who she can trust. In a town where secrets fester just below the water, and a murderer is on the loose, no one can be presumed innocent, and the town’s dark and shallow lies may just rip the town apart. This is Sain’s debut novel. She lives in Tulsa.

Not Now, Cow
Tammi Sauer
Abrams Books

Seasons come and go in the barnyard. All the animals including horse, pig, duck, chicken, sheep, and goat are ready for the seasons to change. But not cow! She’s decked out in a parka and mittens as spring’s first flowers bloom; she adorns ski-pants and a wool hat as the summer sun beats down; in the fall she wears a parka and earmuffs and she sips on hot chocolate; and when winter arrives, cow is seen in a bathing suit and flip-flops as the snow starts to tumble down. Readers will love shouting out the catchy refrain “Not NOW, Cow!” while learning all about the seasons! Sauer is the author of more than thirty children’s picture books. She won the Oklahoma Book Award in 2010 for Chicken Dance; in 2011 for Mostly Monsterly; and in 2014 for Nugget & Fang. She lives in Edmond.

Poetry

A Fine Yellow Dust
Laura Apol
Michigan State University Press

This brave, poetic journal addresses a grief we find hard to talk about—the suicide of a loved one. The poem cycle reads like a day-by-day journey as Apol dips her bucket into a well of memories to process the loss of her daughter, to understand her grief, and to find a path to healing. One reviewer stated, “They are hard poems, without easy consolation, urging us to love the world in spite of its unspeakable sorrow.” In the Author’s Note at the end of the book, Apol writes, “[E]ach poem represents a day I woke up and chose to move forward. From that, there is a lot to be learned.” Apol was an adjunct faculty member in Creative Studies at the University of Central Oklahoma in the mid-90s. She is an associate professor at Michigan State University in East Lansing.

Contour Feathers  Ken Hada  Turning Plow Press

In these sensitive times, and in this unique place where so many of us find ourselves—unnerved, fearful, and aware we are not at peace—Hada’s ninth poetry collection arrives like a salve to remind us there is good and beauty in the natural world that surrounds us. Often composed on his back deck in rural Pottawatomie County, the poems let us into the poet’s world to inspire our own joy and appreciation of the wonders that are—wonders that reside both inside and outside of us. Hada is a professor at East Central University in Ada, where he directs the annual Scissortail Creative Writing Festival. He was awarded the Oklahoma Center for the Book’s Glenda Carlile Distinguished Service Award for his creation and stewardship of that festival.

Ronin  Paul Juhasz  Fine Dog Press

Juhasz’s first book of poetry is a diverse collection of prose poems. He employs unconventional formats to pull the reader into his creative exploration of topics, blasting away in his own inimitable style. Nothing seems to escape the poet’s microscope: lobsters, red dirt, lovelorn insomnia, cowardice in the face of injustice, barn cats, Uber drivers, etc. One reviewer noted, “Reading this imaginative, funny, well-crafted, and intensely human collection, we remember to accept it all as we acknowledge what a terrifying miracle it is to be here.” Born in western New Jersey, raised in Connecticut, and a nomadic traveler through middle America for a-number-of years, Juhasz was “most recently seduced by the spirit of the red earth” and now calls Oklahoma City home.

Stone Roses  Linda Neal Reising  Kelsay Books

Inspired by Women Who Pioneered Oklahoma: Stories from the WPA Narrative (University of Oklahoma Press, 2011), Reising created poems to give the women in the stories more voice than was revealed in the short interview excerpts. She also gave them fictional names—names appropriate for the time period—and kept the birthdate labels of the anonymous interviewees. The result is a collection of poetry that honors the hardship, tenacity, humanity, and spirit of the women who came to this land, whether by wagon, on horseback, or on foot during Indian Removal. Honoring and celebrating these Oklahoma ancestors reminds us that they still stand behind us and with us as we move through the modern world. Reising grew up in rural Oklahoma and now lives in Indiana, where she taught English.
Oklahoma's Oldest & Largest Independent Bookstore

For 50 years, Full Circle Bookstore has loomed large as a literary institution in central Oklahoma. Our goal is the same as when we started: To foster community around a shared love of the book. To this end, we are honored to help facilitate this year's Oklahoma Book Awards.

Lynn McIntosh
Lynn McIntosh Award for Excellence

In 2011, the Oklahoma Center for the Book’s Distinguished Service Award was renamed to honor Glenda Carlile, former director of the Center. Today, we bestow another honor—albeit a posthumous one—on a steadfast friend of the Center, a promoter of libraries and literacy, and a celebrator of readers and the world of the book—Lynn Ann McIntosh. The Center’s Director’s Award is renamed the Lynn McIntosh Award for Excellence.

The Director’s Award has always been a “plus one” or, on one occasion, a “plus two” award. It is given when a round table of judges, having selected their category medalist, brings a finalist title to the Center’s Awards Committee, a title they believe also deserves recognition and a medal. Perhaps it is a title that is a one-of-a-kind work, such as The Encyclopedia of Oklahoma History and Culture: or a book that commemorates a historical event, such as Gaye Sander’s children’s book The Survivor Tree; or a book that celebrates an outstanding individual or individuals; or a work that encourages debate about our history, such as Russell Cobb’s The Great Oklahoma Swindle: Race, Religion, and Lies in America’s Weirdest State. For whatever reason the judges deem a book for this special honor, from now on these works will receive a medal that honors our friend Lynn.

Sooner born and Sooner bred, Lynn Ann Livingston joined the world in Norman, Oklahoma, in 1941. She was raised in Tulsa, and attended the University of Oklahoma where she received her Master of Library Science degree. After detouring to raise a family, working as an asset manager for the FDIC, and succeeding as a million-dollar-selling real estate agent (back when a million dollars was a million dollars), Lynn returned to Oklahoma and to her first love, libraries. As director of the multi-county Southern Oklahoma Library System (formerly the Chickasaw Regional Library System) for 25 years, she excelled, employing her philosophy on leadership: “Good leaders empower individuals to bridge generations; forge new connections; seek and find unlimited destinations; and along the way, discover a lifetime of serendipity.”

Lynn served as president of the Oklahoma Library Association, and received that organization’s Distinguished Service and Library Legend awards. She was president of the Friends of the Oklahoma Center for the Book, and a recipient of the Glenda Carlile Distinguished Service Award. Behind the awards was a passion for the power of libraries and librarianship, and a dedication to volunteerism. Her tried-and-true support of the Oklahoma Center for the Book’s programs was unparalleled.

We miss you, Lynn. But we are so happy to honor your memory tonight and in the years ahead.
Congratulations

Jim Stovall

Recipient of the 2022 Arrell Gibson Lifetime Achievement Award

Jim Stovall is the embodiment of achievement. Although he lost his sight in his twenties, he has been a national Olympic weightlifting champion, a successful investment broker, the president of the Emmy Award-winning Narrative Television Network, and a highly sought-after author and platform speaker. Stovall is the bestselling author of more than fifty books including The Ultimate Gift, which was the basis of a 2006 motion picture starring James Garner and Abigail Breslin. His other books include The Millionaire Map; One Season of Hope; The Ultimate Journey; The Ultimate Financial Plan; The Lamp; The Sound of Honor; The Financial Crossroads; 100 Worst Bosses; Keeper of the Flame; Ultimate Productivity; Today’s The Day; The Ultimate Life; Wisdom of the Ages; Success Secrets of Super Achievers; You Don’t Have to Be Blind to See; and The Way I See The World. In addition to The Ultimate Gift, five of his other novels have also been made into movies with two more in production, including Will to Win, a novel featuring the life, wit, and wisdom of Will Rogers.

For his work in making television accessible to our nation’s 13 million blind and visually-impaired people, The President’s Committee on Equal Opportunity selected Stovall as the 1997 Entrepreneur of the Year. He has been featured in The Wall Street Journal, Forbes magazine, USA Today, and has been seen on Good Morning America, CNN, and CBS Evening News. Moreover, Stovall was also chosen as the 2000 International Humanitarian of the Year, joining Jimmy Carter, Nancy Reagan, and Mother Teresa as recipients of this honor. In November 2021, he was inducted into the Oklahoma Hall of Fame.

The Arrell Gibson Lifetime Achievement Award

The Arrell Gibson Lifetime Achievement Award is presented each year to recognize a body of work. This award is named for the Norman, Oklahoma, historian who served as the first president of the Oklahoma Center for the Book.
Books let us walk in the shoes of others and gain compassion.

Books let us visit the past and learn from history’s mistakes.

Books let us see into the future and imagine what it could be.

... all hail, the storytellers.

Oceans of Possibilities
My Favorite Book—In October 2021, the Oklahoma Center for the Book launched the first My Favorite Book writing contest for students in grades four through 12. The Center and its partners started the competition following the demise of the national Letters About Literature initiative. More than 590 students from across the state—representing public, private, and home schools—participated in My Favorite Book’s first year. Students were required to write a letter to the author of a favorite book, expressing how the book, or one of the book’s characters, affected them personally. Cash prizes are given for first, second, and third-place winners in each division. Moreover, first-place winners will choose their school or public library to receive a $1,000 grant. The awards ceremony will be held May 11, 2022, at the Oklahoma State Capitol on the second-floor rotunda. The competition was also sponsored by the Friends of the Oklahoma Center for the Book, the Kirkpatrick Foundation, and the Institute of Museum and Library Services. To see the list of winners and for more information, go to libraries.ok.gov/my-favorite-book.

National Book Festival—The Oklahoma Center for the Book participated in the 2021 National Book Festival by featuring Oklahoma children’s author Barbara Lowell in a Great Reads virtual panel session. Lowell discussed her book My Mastodon, which won the 2021 Oklahoma Book Award for children. She was joined by other children’s authors from across the nation.

Oklahoma Author Database—The Center, its Friends group, and the Oklahoma Department of Libraries continue to maintain this database of Oklahoma authors as an online resource for libraries, schools, and readers. Visit digitalprairieok.net, scroll down to “Oklahoma Authors,” and click! If you’re an eligible Oklahoma author and you’re not in the database, there are also instructions for submitting your information. And … if you’re in our database, when was the last time you provided us with an update?

National Poetry Month—In April 2021 the Oklahoma Center for the Book and the Oklahoma Department of Libraries participated in National Poetry Month by showcasing thirty of Oklahoma’s poets on the Department of Libraires’ website, as well as on the Center’s social media pages. You can still view our 2021 salute to these outstanding Oklahoma poets at libraries.ok.gov/poetry-month.
Friends of the OKLAHOMA CENTER FOR THE BOOK

Board of Directors

The Friends of the Oklahoma Center for the book is a cultural and educational non-profit organization with the mission to advance and promote the role of books and reading in Oklahoma. The Friends of the Oklahoma Center for the Book supports and further enhances the programs and projects of the Oklahoma Center for the Book in the Oklahoma Department of Libraries and the Center for the Book in the Library of Congress. A volunteer board of directors from across the state governs the Friends.
